

When Great Trees Fall

And when great souls die,
after a period peace blooms, slowly and always irregularly. Spaces fill with a kind of soothing electric vibration.
Our senses, restored, never to the be the same, whisper to us.
They existed, They existed.
We can be. Be and be better. For they existed.

– Maya Angelou

Pandemic Poetry
for Our Community at a Time of Crisis

May there be healing and blessing for us and all people throughout the world who live now under the shadows of illness, anxiety, and isolation.

May hope turn our fear to faith and show us a way to peace of mind, wholeness within, and strength from community.

May those who care for the sick with their hands, their voices, and their hearts be blessed with courage and stamina.

May those who pursue healing through medical skill and knowledge be blessed with insight, patience, and compassion.

Let us – the caregivers and hope-givers – shine the soft light of human kindness in dark places.

May all of us –
the sick and the well together –
know and feel the blessing of ancient times:

“Chazak ve-ematz – Be strong and of good courage.” (Joshua 1:6,7,9)
